The Journal of Practical Global Business® publishes articles, which deal with all aspects of global business and global business education. Our intent is to serve as a forum for the expression of current thought, technique, theory, ideas, issues, trends, and innovations in the field. Although not intended for the reporting of original research, the implications of such research for practitioners and educators is certainly an appropriate subject matter for authors. Almost any issue which deals with any "concept" of "global business" is appropriate for the Journal. This broad range of topics spans the spectrum from literature review to business application.

Academically sound articles that offer a practical approach to international business matters are the central theme of the publication. Interested parties, who would like to have their articles considered for publication in this peer-refereed journal, should direct them to Dr. Marlene Bedore, Editor.

If you would like to volunteer to be a member of the Journal's peer review board, to read articles with potential for publication, you may direct your interest to the e-mail address as listed in the submission procedure outlined in the back of the journal.
